Administration on Aging: AGing Integrated Database (AGID)
The AGing Integrated Database (AGID) is an on-line query system based on ACL-related data files and surveys, and includes population characteristics from the Census Bureau for comparison purposes. The four options or paths through AGID provide different levels of focus and aggregation of the data - from individual data elements within Data-at-a-Glance to full database access within Data Files.
Before you begin your query, please review AGID's Resources section with an "About AGID" overview, descriptions of data sources, and frequently asked questions (FAQ). Even experienced AGID users may find the Resources documentation helpful. At any time, you may select from one of the four options below and follow the system prompts. If you need additional assistance, please complete an AGID Support request from the link found at the bottom left of every AGID screen.

 Older Americans Act Title VI Services – Nutrition

Program Quick Facts

- Title VI of the Older Americans Act (OAA) establishes grants to Native Americans for nutrition services, supportive services, and family caregiver support services.
- Title VI is comprised of three sections: Part A is the American Indian/Alaskan Native Program; Part B is the Native Hawaiian Program; and Part C is the Native American Caregiver Support Program, which can be accessed by recipients of either Parts A or B.
- Services provided by Title VI include congregate and home delivered meals, supportive services (e.g., transportation, legal assistance, homemaker service), and caregiver support services.

Research tells us that individual behavior and social and environmental factors, such as adequate nutrition, determine 60% of a person's health, compared to health care (10%) and genetics (30%).¹ Title VI provides services to bolster that 60%.

In 2016, Title VI provided almost 2.5 million congregate meals for over 64,000 Native American elders and caregivers...

...and provided over 2.5 million home delivered meals for nearly 25,000 homebound elders and caregivers.

New Research Brief: ACL Supports for Family Caregivers Across the Lifespan

Administration for Community Living Supports for Family Caregivers across the Lifespan

February 2019

Background

The Administration for Community Living (ACL) was formed in 2012, combining the Administration on Aging, the Administration on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities, and the HHS Office on Disability to ensure a more comprehensive approach to aging and disability across the lifespan. ACL's mission is to maximize the independence and well-being of older adults, individuals with disabilities, and their families and caregivers. To support this mission, ACL funds a broad spectrum of services and supports delivered through state agencies and community-based programs, providing assistance on health and wellness, protecting rights, and funding research to improve our understanding of the health issues faced by an aging America (ACL, 2017a).

The following brief serves as an introduction to the National Family Caregiver Support Program and related programs administered by ACL that provide support to family caregivers of older adults. While this brief approaches these programs from the perspective of aging services and supports, they are not exclusive to caregivers of older Americans and reach a broad population.

An Overview of Informal Caregiving

As individuals age and begin to experience declines in their health, family members and friends commonly assume greater roles in making treatment decisions and providing other supports to the care recipient. In many cases, these family and friends take on the role of caregiver, performing tasks such as assisting with activities of daily living (ADLs) and instrumental
